IN MEMORY OF

"I may not get there with you but... we as a people will get to the promised land."

REFLECTIONS

Economic Freedom

The emergency we face now is economic, and it is a desperate and worsening situation

For the 35 million poor people in American ...there is a kind of strangulation in the air. In our society it is murder, psychologically, to deprive a man of a job or an income. You are in substance saying to that man that he has no right to exist.

We must forever conduct our struggle on the high plain of dignity and discipline. Wemust not allow our creative protest to generate into physical violence. Again and again we must rise to the majestic height of meeting physical force with soul force;

"Every now and then I think about my own death, and I think about my own funeral...I don't want a long funeral. And if you get somebody to deliver the eulogy, tell them not to talk too long....Tell them not to mention that I have a NOBEL PEACE PRIZE... Tell them not to mention that I have three or four hundred other awards.. I'd like somebody to mention that day, that Martin Luther King Jr., tried to give his life serving others.

I'd like for somebody to say that day tha MArtin Luther King Jr., tried to love somebody.

"Say that I was a drum major for justice. Say that I was a drum major for peace. That I was a drum major for righteousness. And all of the other shallow things will not matter.

I won't have any money to leave behind. I won't have the fine and luxurious things of life to leave behind. But I just want to leave a commited life behind.

Non-Violence

Violence as a way of achieving racial justice is both impractical and immoral.

It is impractical because it is a desending spiral ending in destruction for all.

The old law of an eye for an eye leaves everybody blind. It is immoral because it seeks to humiliate the opponent rather than win his understanding; it seeks to annihilate rather than to convert. Violence is immoral because it thrives on hatred rather than love. It destroys community and makes brotherhood impossible...It creates bitterness in the surviors and brutality in the destroyers.

Words Of Wisdom

WHO HATH BELIEVED OUR REPORT? AND TO WHOM IS THE ARM OF THE LORD REVEALED?

FOR HE SHALL GROW UP BEFORE HIM AS A ROOT OUT OF THE GROUND

HE HATH NO FORM OR COMILINESS: AND WHEN WE SHALL SEE HIM, THERE IS NO BEAUTY THAT WE SHOULD DESIRE HIM.

IA ISAIAH 24

Behold, the Lord maketh empty, and maketh it waste, and turneth it upside down, and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof.

And it shall be, as with the people, so with the priest; as with the servant, so with his master; as with the maid, so with her mistress; as with the buyer, so the with the seller; as with the lender, so with the borrower; as with the taker of usury, so with the giver of usury to him.

The land shall be utterly emptied, and utterly spoiled; for the Lord hath spoken this word.

The earth mourneth and fadeth away, the world languisheth and fadeth away, the haughty people of the earth do languish.

the earth also is deeiled under the inhabitants thereof; because they have trangressed the laws, changed the ordinance broken the everlasting covenant.

Therefore hath the curse devoured the earth, and they that dwell therein are desolate: therefore the inhabitants of the earth are burned, and few men left.

The new wine mourneth, the vine languisheth, all the meryhearted do sigh.

The mirth of tabrets ceaseth, the noise of them that rejoice endeth, the joy of the harp ceaseth.

they shall not drink wine with a song; strong drink shall be bitter to them that drink it.

The city of confusion is broken down: every house is shut up, that no man may come in.

There is a crying for wine in streets; all joy is darkened the mirth of the land is gone.

In the city is left desolation, and the gate is smitten with destruction.

When thus it shall be in the midst of the land among the people, there shall be as the shaking of an olive tree, and as the gleaning grapes when the vintage is done.

They shall lift up their voice, they shall sing for the majesty of the Lord, they shall cry aloud from the sea.

Wherefore glorify ye the Lord in the fires, even the name of the Lord God of Israel in the isles of the sea.

From the uttermost part of the earth have we heard songs, even glory to the righteous. But I said, My leanness, my leanness, woe unto me! the treacherous dealers have dealt treacherously; yea, the treacherous dealers have dealt very treacherously.

Fear, and the pit, and the snare, are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth.

And it shall come to pass, that he who fleeth from the noise of the fear shall fall into the pit; and he that cometh up out of the midst of the pit shall be taken in the snare: for the windows from on high are open, and the foundations of the earth do shake.

The earth is utterly broken down, the earth is clean dissolved, the earth is moved exceedingly.

The earth shall reel to and fro like a drunkard, and shall be removed like a cottage; and the transgression thereof shall be heavy upon it; and it shall fall, and not rise again.

And it shall come to pass in that day, that the Lord shall punish the host of the high ones that are on high, and the kings of the earth upon the earth.

And they shall be gathered together, as prisoners are gathered in the pit, and shall be shut up in the prison, and after many days shall they be visited.

Then the moon shall be confounded, and the sun ashamed, when the Lord of hosts shall reign in mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before his ancients gloriously.

Department Ecology To Hold Public Meeting

OLYMPIA -- The Washington State Department of Ecology will hold a public meeting to discuss efforts to investigate and clean up hazardous waste sites in the state.

The meeting will be held Tuesday, January 21, 1986 at the General Administration Building, 11th and Columbia Streets, Olympia, beginning at 7p.m.

The Ecology Department has assessed more than 500 potential hazardous waste sites and has initiated investigations and cleanups at 58 sites. Currently, 25 of these sites have been nominated to the federal "Superfund" hazardous waste list.

The upcoming meeting will include a short slide presentation which explains the extent of the problem and how the Ecology Department is dealing with the past practices of unregulated hazardous waste disposal. The slide show also tells how individuals can become involved.

The program will also cover the need for additional legislation to fund the state's hazardous waste cleanup effort. According to Ecology Director Andrea Beatty Riniker, several hundred million dollars will be needed to investigate and clean up waste sites in Washington over the next 10 to 20 years.

Ecology officials will discuss the status of Senate Bill 3193 which will be introduced in the 1986 Legislative session. The bill proposes authorities and long-term funding for Ecology's hazardous waste cleanup program.

Northwest Trek Seeks Volunteers

On Jan. 30, Northwest Trek Wildlife Park will sponsor the first of six weekly training sessions for those desiring to serve as park volunteers and docents. Located on Highway 161, Northwest Trek is six miles north of Eatonville.

The volunteer classes will be held from 10a.m. to 2p.m. on Thursdays through March 13 in the park's education staff.

Governmental Tidbits

Here are a few topics of interest taken from the Freedom Bulletin, that should be of great interest to the church community.

Church Audits and the I.R.S.

The Senate and the Huse passed the Church Audit Procedures Act as an amendment to the Deficit Reduction Act. Under this act churches will be protected from unwarranted IRS audits and unreasonable tax inquiries and examinations.

Social Security and The Church

A victory has been attained in the Social Security fight. The Dole "Compromise" to the Social Security Act of 1983 passed, after having been attached to the Deficit Reduction Act of 1984 in the Senate, and surviving a Conference Committee.

Under the compromise the church "employee" will be considered as "self-employed" by the government, therefoer maing them responsible for paying the entire 14% social security tax. Some still object to this since many church will increase their pay to make up for the lost salary, which would mean the church would still be paying the tax indirectly.

Be that as it may, this compromise relieves churches from paying or collecting or remitting the tax PROVIDING each church:

1. makes "a one-time election to exclude from the definition of employment for purposes of FICA taxes, services performed in the employ of the church" and "states it is opposed for religious reasons to the payment of social security taxes." (this form should have been sent in by October 15, 1984, but new churches, or churches with positive explanation or alibi, may yet qualify); 2. "did not have a waiver of exemption from social security coverage in effect on December 31, 1930"; and 3. will "furnish relevant information required of employers subject to income tax withholding. This includes information with respect to the identity of employees and the amount of wages paid to each employee."

Remember, this is a COMPROMISE. Churches no longer have to pay tax, but they are required to file for special exemption from the tax and annually give information regarding employees and finances. Some of our brethern cannot live with the compromise, while many can. Regardless, each individual pastor and church will have to make decisions based on their own convictions from the Word of God, not somebody else's, concerning how far they can go along with this new development.

Since we are quick to send our condemnations to those who vote contrary to our point of view, I believe it would be wise for us to send letters to Senator Dole and Senator Jepsen for the work they did to at least bring us this far.

Thank You-From Christmas House

Christmas House again proved to be a rousing success this year as thousands of Pierce County families were served. Tacoma should be proud they helped these families provide toys and clothing for their children. Now that the holiday season is over, the Christmas HOuse staff has pulled together some statistics that are truly inspiring.

Christmas House helped 3,318 families. Of these, 1,923 were families that had never been to Christmas House before. There were 930 more families this year than last year. 19,864 gifts were given to 9,923 children. In 1935, $51,712 in donations were raised. 70% of these donations were less than $100 per donation, indicating the wide base of support Christmas House received.

What really drives Christmas House is the volunteers that unselfishly devote their time. This year 568 volunteers put in 4,525 man-hours. 22 area churches of all denominations sent volunteers. 18 P.E.O. chapters also sent helpers.

While these numbers help to demonstrate the effectiveness of Christmas House, they must not obscure the true meaning and intent of what this organization is all about. Christmas House is people sharing with people; people lending a hand to those who are less fortunate than themselves.

Christmas House is a year-round organization. Donations of gifts, clothing, toys, and time are always welcome. Thank you Tacoma for making Christmas a happy time for less fortunate Pierce County families.

Fallacies Still Exist About Periodontal Disease

Many people believe mouthwashes, toothpastes and powders will help prevent or cure gum disease. In fact, Americans spend over $250 million on these commercial products each year. But the American Academy of Periodonthology contends that there is no know mouthwash, toothpaste or powder which has been shown to be effective in removing bacterial plaque or preventing periodontal disease.

Periodontal or gum disease is most often caused by a build up of bacterial plaque at the gumline. It affects 3 out of 4 adults and is the number one cause of tooth loss Yet, most people are uneducated about this all to common disease and many fallacies still prevail.

How much do you know about periodontal disease? The Washington State Society of Periodontists has constructed this simple test which will enable you to check your periodontal I.Q.

For free information about Periodontal Disease write to The Washington State Society of Periodontists (WSSP), P.O. Box 498, Mercer Island, Wa. 98040.

Free Estate Pamphlet Explains Trust

Estate planning involves many considerations and various legal devices to make sure property is distributed according to one's wishes. To explain trust agreements -- one popular (but sometimes complex) estate planning tool -- the Washington State Bar Association has published a free pamphlet, "What you sould know about Trusts."

Produced as a public service, the Trust pamphlet is the latest topic in the State Bar's series of "Citizen Rights" publications. To obtain a free copy of the new brochure, write to "Trust Pamphlet," Washington State Bar Association, 505 Madison Street, Seattle, WA 98104. Requests must include a long (#10/business size), self-addressed stamped envelope.

Based on trust statutes of the state of Washington, the pamphlet explains some of legal terms, benefits and other considerations associated with trust agreements. The consumer guide uses a question-and-answer format to discuss such coonly asked questions as: "How is a trust created?" "What are a trustee's duties and obligations?" "Can a trust be altered or revoked?" "How long does a trust last?"

Along with providing a summary of different types of trust agreements, the pamphlet outlines several factors that should be considered when establishing a trust. Financial considerations, such as taxes and fees for professional services, are also discussed.

The Trust pamphlet is one in a series of free consumer information publications the Bar Association provides to acquaint citizens with their legal rights. Among other topics are wills, probate, marriage, dissolution, signing docments, buying and selling real estate, and landlord/tenant rights. A list of currently available titles and ordering information are enclosed with each pamphlet request the time it is processed.

Author Selected For Distinguished Writer Post

The author and journalist, born in Reading, England, now lives in New York City but spent 13 years in Israel where she found the material for her very important first book, "Israeli Women" (1978), a revealing study of life in Israel. This was followed by "Where Mountains Roar," a much acclaimed work about the Sinai and Negev deserts, which was praised by "The New Yorker" for Hazleton's ability to write "with enthusiasm, with authority, and with heart. The result is a first-rate book."

While writing these books, Hazleton was also publishing articles in the best national magazines, including "The New York Times Magazine," "Ms," "Harper's" and "Esquire."

In 1984 came another important book. Hazleton used her formal background in psychology to complete "The Right to Feel Bad," a refreshingly common-sense view of depression in modern society and how experts and others involved rely too often on drug "cures" and the tigmas against feeling blue, fanned by denial of the world as it is by phony "feel-good" philosophers. The book was praised by many and called "deeply valuable" by Thomas J. Cottle of the Harvard Medical School.

Hazleton's latest book is an autobiography to be published by Atlantic Monthly Press.

While at Pacific Lutheran University, Hazleton will teach freelance and autobiographical writing. She will also give a public lecture on Feb. 21 at 8p.m. in the University Center, the upper PLU campus.

ROMANS CHAPTER 14

Him that is weak in the faith receive ye, but not to doubtful disputations.

For one believeth that he may eat all things: another, who is weak, eateth herbs.

Let not him that eateth despise him that eateth not; and let not him which eateth not judge him that eateth: for God hath received him.

Who are thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth. Yea, he shall be holden up: For God is able to make him stand.

One man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind.

He that regardeth the day, regarded it unto the Lord; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks.

For none of us liveth to himself and no man dieth to himself.

For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's.

For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living.

But why dost thou set at nought thy bother?

We welcome news of your church and civic events.

Unemployment Up

Total unemployment in Washington State rose to 168,700 or 8.0 percent of the labor force in November, up from 159,800 or 7.5 percent in October, according to Employment Security Commissioner Isiah Turner.

Increases in unemployment are expected at this time of the year because of the effect of adverse weather conditions on outdoor activities and the end of the smmer tourist season.

"The increase in unemployment between October and November this year was slightly less than usual," Turner said. "Over the past 10 years unemployment has increased an average of 10,200 between October and November, and the unemployment rate has moved up an average of six-tenths of a point. This year, unemployment rose 8,900, while the unemployment rate added five-tenths of a point."

Employment fell 24,400 rom October with a sizable drop in agriculture following the completion of the apple harvest. The loss in nonagricultural wage and salary employment was limited to 3,300 as seasonal losses were cushioned by the hiring of temporary holiday sales workers, further gains in public education and continued expansion in aerospace. In spite of increased unemployment in November, the Employment Security Department helped over 6,200 people find jobs.

Manufacturing employment declined 4,800 in November.

The major drop was in food products (down 3,300) after the completion of major food preserving work.

Lumber industry employment declined 1,300, and smaller seasonal losses occurred in other industries. Aerospace, however, continued to be the bulwark of the state's manufacturing industries and added 1,100 workers.

In the nonmanufacturing industries, construction employment fell 3,900 and services was 2,500 lower.

Public education partially offset the drop with a gain of 1,700 as schools continued to round out their staffing for the new school year.

Over the year, total employment in the stare was up 73,700 in November while unemployment was down 20,800. The largest year-to-year employment expansions occurred in aerospace (up 8,500), retail trade (up 12,400), and services (up 16,200).

Person Of The Year For 1985

The arrests and rearrests of Winnie Mandela exposed both a very enlightening truth and an inescapable fact.

The truth is that Time magazine was wrong when it chose China's Deng Ziaoping as its 59th Man of the Year, as the person who "has most significantly influenced the course of world events in the preceding 12 months."

Time's editors arrived at the choice of the 81-year-old leader because of "China's sweeping economic reforms, which have challenged Marxist orthodoxies and liberated the productive energies of a billion people." It is Time correctly assessed, "a phenemenon with an enormous potential impact on history..." If his reforms work, "the world will not be the same."

By choosing another person for that vaunted title, owever, does not bury the significance of Deng and his defiance of "the precepts most cherished by traditional Marxists." It's just that, in my opinion, the world's future will not hinge on a debate of Capitalism versus Communism. Ironically, the term "Capitalism" came from the architect of Communism, Karl Marx. Deng, as a choice, lacks the force of history.

My choice for Person of the Year for 1985: Winnie Mandela.

She brings to the world a new spirit. It's indefinable. Like Gandhi or King, perhaps.

Her Kingdom, you sense, will not be a land mass or a race of people -- certainly not a political system.

Her defiance of the racial injustice in South Africa is not based on political ambition or publicity seeking. Her soul, simply put, is tired; like Rosa Parks' feet- when she started the contemporary civil rights movement in the late 50s.

Being called "South Africa's First Lady" doesn't seem to fit her, either. It seems too contrived, too like the evil she so eloquently resists with her passive-aggression.

Quite frankly, her decision to defy the government's order restricting her from her home in Soweto, came rom her soul. She is telling the world that she will die for it. No longer, she is saying, will she avoid her destiny.

Winnie Mandela is the spark of freedom for the world. it will ignite that same, yet underdeveloped, spark in the rest of South Africa's 23 million Black slaves and in 30 million African-Americans.

Our transformation will have a much greater impact on the world than China's change in ideological direction. It will not only change world politics by shifting the world's most treasured natural resources, but it will usher in a new world-view of justice. That's the truth.

The fact is that slavery (apartheid) in South Africa is coming to an end because of the truth.

And Winnie Mandela, wife of the heroic Nelson Mandela, is giving birth to that natural truth. She may die in childbirth, but what she produces will never die.

An Independent View from Capitol Hill

BY HON. GUS SAVAGE
Member of Congress

Bright Spots In Bleak Congressional Session

Despite the disaster that was the first year of present two-year 99th Congress, as reported in my column last week, my most satisfying achievements were neverthe less won in that session, which ended December 26.

For example, at my instigation and under my direction, hte historic businesses and Black colleges passed in the House of Representatives. Most observers, supporters and opponents like, concede that this was a major accomplishment, especially in view of the fact that I seered this amendment through the House without compromising my position that the overall defense budget was too high.

It was also during this session that I secured authorization for the construction of a third federal building in the city of Chicago. This building, now authorized in the House, will be much larger than the two existing federal buildings in the city and will represent approximately $20 million in new jobs and construction contracts.

When federal minority set-asides, which I will be monitoring closely, are coupled with May Harold Washington's commendable executive order mandating minority participation in all contracts, I am confident that black contractors will get their fair share.

However, one of my most stimulating accomplishments occurred on the last day of the session. Through a congressional maneuver, I was able, single-handedly, to save, at least temporarily, 90,000 acres of land that the government was to take from the defenseless Cippewa Indian tribe on the White Earth Reservation originally consisted of 854,000 acres. Now, typically, the Indians own a mere 56,000. The title to another 100,000 acres is clouded by a Minnesota Supreme Court decision which questioned the legality of the acquisition of that land from the Indians.

Hence, the U.S. Senators and U.S. Representatives from Minesota joined to get the federal government to settle the disputed 100,000 acres in the interest of the current, non-Indian possessors of the proverty.

They proposed in a bill to return a mere 10,000 acres to the Chippewa, clear the titles of the non-Indian claimants to the remaining 90,000 acres, and inadequately compensate the Indians with $17 million of your federal tax dollars

Tragically, there is not a single American Indian in congress. Therefore, after the U.S. Senate approved the bill and the U.S. Representatives from Minnesota decided to seek "unanimous consent of the House" to approve the bill out-of-order on the last day of the session, the Indians had nobody to block the action.

The Chippewa tribal council, in canvassing House members for support, pleaded for any one Congressman to stand up in their behalf and object to the bill being considered in the House out-of-order. That would be suficient to kill the bill in the first session of Congress.

I agreed and stood up out of empathy for the Indians, and paid the high price of lost friendships and relation in the Congress.

Yet, I am consoled by the fact that right seldom exacts a price that is too high to pay.

Maximizing Your IRA In 1986

TACOMA FINANCIAL CENTER

TACOMA, WA. 98402

It's that time of the year again -- time to contribute to your 1985 Individual Retirement Account, if you haven't alreay. Although the legal deadline is April 15 -- the day your income tax return is due-- the sooner you fnd your IRA the better. Every month you delay costs you real, tax-deferred dollars of investment earnings.

Once you have funded your IRA for 1985 (100% of earnings up to $2,000 is permitted for each wage earner), quickly do the same for 1986, or at least begin making contributions toward the maximum $2,000. And if you also have a Keogh retirement account -- which enables you to shelter a portion of any self-employed, freelance or consulting income you may have -- work with your accountant to estimate how much you'll be able to contribute in 1986 and start making partial investments.

Be careful, however, not to over-contribute, because you may incur a tax penalty. Your permissible Keogh contribution is based on a percentage of your net self-employed income -- a figure you probably won't know precisely until the year is over. If you do earn some non-salary income, even if only a modest amount, and have not yet opened a Keogh account, that should be your first financial priority for the new year.

The advantages of contributing to IRAs and Keoghs as early as possible are dramatic: If, for example, you invest $2,000 on January 2 every year for 25 years at 9% interest, you will end up with $169,402. If, however, you put off each year's investment until the end of the year, you will have only $155,580 at the end of 25 years.

That's the "penalty of procrastination," a loss of nearly $14,000 incompounded interest. By delaying your contribution, your retirement account is about 8% lighter than it could be.

When it comes to IRAs and Keoghs, getting an early start means more than just making your annual contribution as soon as possible after the new year. It also means establishing an IRA early in life. Ideally, everyone should open an IRA as soon as he or she begins to work.

Of course, setting aside cash is not always easy on a beginner's salary.

One solution is what we at Shearson Lehman Brothers call "A Present with a Future." It's very simple: A parent or other relative gives a young working person a gift of a $2,000 IRA. The advantages: 1. The older relative makes the gift free free of tax, because the $2,000 is well below the limit for tax-free gifts. 2. The person starting a career gets a $2,000 current tax deduction, which is equal to a cash benefit of perhaps $500 or $600, depending on his or her salary and tax bracket. (This feature is especially useful to mention when your youngster says, "Gee, Dad, that's nice, but I'd rather have the cash.") 3. The person who starts an IRA in his twenties will have, at age 65, a sizeable retirement fund. Assuming the $2,000 is invested in zero-coupon bonds for, say, 40 years, it will be worth $100,000 when the person retires.

Of course, if he or she makes additional annual investments of $2,000 over the 40 years, the nest egg will be huge, even taking inflation into account 4. Finally, the young person will get a head start in developing a disciplined approach to money management and, in working with a Financial Consultant, will learn about the wide range of investment products now available.

("Maximizing Your IRA in 1986: Part II" will focus on choosing the best investments for your IRA.)

By Sen. Ted Bottiger

(Olympia) -- Fire can spread quickly and knows no boundaries. it won't stop at a property line or burn itself out when it reaches another fire protection district. The rangeland fires during the hot summer of 1985 surely showed state and local officials that a comprehensive plan to prevent and fight rangeland fires must come out of the 1986 legislative session

Sen. R. Ted Bottiger (D-Graham) has studied the problem of fire suppression and is working several solutions.

"There are almost 3 million acres of land in Washington State with no fire protection," Bottiger said. "When a fire starts on state land and threatens to spread to private property, it is not clear when the local fire department can go in and battle the blaze. The fire certainly won't wait for emergency service officials to decide who has jurisdiction."

Local fire departments are sometimes forced to fight fires on land not within their areas of jurisdiction at a great expense to the local taxpayers. Bottiger says it's only fair for the state to reimburse the local agencies for fires which started on state land.

The Department of Natural Resources is responsible for fires on forested land but in many cases land is under the jurisdiction of the Departments of Game or Parks which are not equipped to fight large fires. Therefore a fire at one of the many parks in Pierce County could easily get out of hand and threaten private property before the DNR can respond.

To solve the problem of turf battles over fire suppression Bottger is looking at three possible answers: 1. Expand the DNR Jurisdiction to cover Game and Parks Department land, with the respective agency responsible for the cost of fire prevention and suppression. 2. Require other state agencies to upgrade their fire prevention and suppression programs to DNR standards, and 3. Require the other state agencies to participate in local fire protection districts and pay assessments to the local fire department for prevention and suppression.

"The state must also provide a special contingency fund to reimburse fire districts who are first on the scene. State fire fighters cannot always get to the blaze within the crucial first few minutes," Bottiger said. "The early response is often the difference between a small grass fire and a thousand-acre blaze. During those first few minutes, the local fire districts cannot be worried about breaking their budgets if they respond."

Bottiger said the problem also exist with the federal government, but that the state can do little about solving those problems.

"With so much military land in Pierce County, it is important to know range fires will be extinguished before they jump onto private or other public lands," Bottiger said. "I hope the steps we take at the state level can be an example for the federal government."

The Second Distrit's other legislators Reps. Wayne Ehlers (D-Spanaway) and Ken Madsen (D-Roy) will be working with Sen. Bottiger to resolve the fire prevention and suppression problem.

Swift Urges Relief For U.S Shake And Shingle Industry

Washington, D.C. - Rep. Al Swift testified before the International Trade Commission in Washington, D.C. Thursday, urging that the commission recommend to the president that a 67 percent duty be set on all imported wood shakes and shingles for a period of five years. Imported shakes and shingles have been without tariffs and quotas for over 20 years.

"I am here," Swift told the commission, "because there is a real and immediate need by the U S. industry for relief if it is to be a viable indistry today and in the future."

Swift noted a distinction between this situation and reent calls for purely protectionist legislation for some commodities. "The present law establishes criteria for fair trading practices among our trading partners. In this case, we are using that administrative remedy to seek relief from what we believe are unfair Canadian trade practices as regards the importing of shakes and shingles."

Swift charged that subsidization of the shake and shingle industry by the Canadian government "is the fundamental cause of our domestic industry's problem." Other testimony before the commission indicated that significant subsidies are provided by the Canadian government.

The U.S. shake and shingle industry has experienced a severe decline in the number of operating mills in the three Pacific Northwest States of Washington, Oregon and Idaho that produce over 90 per cent of U.S. shakes and shingles

In his testimony, Swift noted that "employment in the forest products industry in the Northwest is at the lowest level since World War II." He indicated that over 1,800 jobs have been lost between 1979 and 1934, not including the loss of many additional logging jobs.

Approximately half of the shake and shingle mills in the United States are in the Second Congressional district which Swift represents. Mills that are still in business are only able to operate at 50 percent capacity, and most have closed intermittently over the past six years.

Swift explained that the majority of the mills are small businesses averaging eight employees each, while even the largest facilities would typically employ about 40 people.

As an alternate solution the industry proposed that a quota be placed on wood shakes and shingles "equal to the import share of U.S. market consumption in 1979 for a period of five years." According to the industry, this owuld lmit shake imports to no more than 41 percent of the domestic market, and 71 percent of the domestic shingle market.

Ken Brett Named Commentator For Mariners On Kiro-TV

Ken Brett, know as one of the best hitting pitchers ever to play Major League Baseball, has been named as color commentator for the Seattle Mariners games to be broadcast on KIRO Television, announced Glenn Wright, KIRO-TV vice president/general manager. Brett will join play-by-play announcers Dave Niehaus and Rick Rizzs on the broadcasts.

KIRO-TV gained the much-coveted broadcast rights to the Mariners in an agreement signed on October 31, 1985, maing the station one of only a few network-affiliated televison stations in the country to have a hometown baseball team as a major sports franchise.

During his 12 year career, Brett achieved the distinction of being one of only three Major League pitchers to have played on ten different teams. He set a Major league record for pitchers by hitting home runs in four consecutive starts. At age nineteen, he was the youngest pitcher ever to pitch in a World Series game.

He played in two League Championship Series: 1974 with Pittsburgh and 1980 with Kansas City.

Brett's managing bacground includes a stint as field manager during the 1985 season for the Utica Blue Sox, a class "A" team in the New York/Penn. League.

His team finished in second place. He and his three brothers, John, Bobby and George, now own the Spokane Indians. George plays for the World Champion Kansas City Royals, was the winner of the American League MVP in 1980 and was the American League batting champion in 1976 and 1980.

"We are very happy about Ken becoming a part of our Mariners' broadcasts." Wright Said. "With his love of the game, his playing and managing experience, and his unique enthusiasm, we expect Ken's color analysis to add an exciting perspective to our broadcasts, making them more entertaining and informative for our viewers."

The first of 37 Mariners telecasts on KIRO/TV will air March 22 at 4:30p.m. when the Mariners host the Oakland A's at the Mariners' spring training site in Temp, Arizona.

We trust that all Americans, regardless of creed or color will come to realize that this is the day for all people of our great Nation to honor this great man MARTIN LUTHER KING JR

This day will also show the world that America is slowly but surely coming to realize that Black Americans must be a part of American Society.

After the Emancipation and Proclamation, America recognizes the important contribution that Black men have played in making America one of the greatest nations on earth, through their LABOR, BLOOD, TEARS, AND SWEAT Black men and women have worked, fought and died without getting full recognition for their effort.

Now at last we have one day of full National Recognition to honor the labor, the blood line of so great a number of people which make America great and will cross all racial boundaries and coincide to help our goal where we can declare with all men of America and sing Martin Luther Kings' Song, "WE WILL BE FREE AT LAST.

Move on stars and stripes as we salute you proudly.

Excerpts From Congressional Budget Office

Following are excerpts from a Joint Report of the Congressional Budget Office and the Office of Management and Budget to the Comptroller General of the United States entitled "Sequestration Report for Fiscal Year 1986: A Summary":

For defense programs, sequestrable budgetary resources are new budget authority provided for 1986 andunobligated balances of budget authoriy provided in previous years.

Note all budgetary resources are subject to sequestration. the act exempts a number of programs and activities of the Federal Government from the sequestration process, including Social Security benefits, veterans' compensation and pensions, regular state unemployment insurance benefits, net interest, Medicaid, aid to families with dependent children, food stamps, supplemental security income, child nutrition and the women, infants, and children program. Also exempt from sequestration are prior legal obligations of the Government in ceratin specified budget accounts, as wel as the program bases for programs with automatic spending increases resulting from changes in price indexes (mostly retirement and disability programs). Federal administrative expenses for otherwise exempt programs and activities, however, are sequesterable, including programs that are self-supporting.

Certain programs and activities, while not exempt, are subject to special rules that have the effect of limiting the amount of spending reduction. For example, the sequestration of budgetary resources for Medicare, veterans' medical care, and certain health prgrams is limited to 1 percent in 1986 and 2 percent annually in 1987 through 1991. On the other hand, the total amount of the automatic spending increases (primarily cost-of-living adjustments) are sequesterable.

MEDICARE

The sequestration reductions in the Medicare program are to be achieved by reducing payment amounts for covered services. No changes in coinsurance or deductible obligations are to be made and covered services are unaffected under a sequestration order. Under such an order, each payment amount would be reduced by a maximum of 1 percent for fiscal year 1986 and 2 percent for each subsequent year in which there is sequestration, relative to whatever level of payment would otherwise be made under Medicare law and regulation. The reduction would be proportionately reduced in any year in which the excess deficit is small enough to permmit a smaller reduction. Based on the need for the maximum sequestration allowed under the act in 1986, a reduction of 1 percent will be required for this year. The estimated outlays savings to be achieved in 1986 by applying this special rule is $300 million. In addition, the sequestration of Medicare administrative expenses is estimated to save another $74.5 million in outlays.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION PROGRAMS

The Act provides that the following items are not available for sequester: regular state unemployment benefits, the state share of extended unemployment benefits, the state share of extended unemployment benefits, benefits paid to former Federal employees and formmer members of the armed services and loans and advances to the state and federal unemployement accoujants. The Federal share of extended benefits and federally paid benefits and administrative expenses are available for sequester. The act also provides that states may, without penalty, reduce their share of Federal-state extended unemployment benefits if the Federal share of benefits is reduced by a sequester order. The act is silent with respect to unemployment benefits for railroad workers; these benefits, therefore, are presumed to be sequesterable.

MINE WORKERS DISABILITY COMPENSATION

Increases in disability benefits under the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act are to be treated in the same manner as other automatic spending increases. This act covers black lung and special benefits for disabled coal miners, which are indexed to changes in Federal pay for civilian employees. Since there will be no change in these pay levels in 1986, no savings will result from the application of this special rule.

FEDERAL PAY

The act provides that rates of pay for civilian employees (and rates of basic pay, basic subsistence allowances, and basic quarter allowances for members of the uniformed services), or any scheduled pay increases, may not be reduced pursuant to a sequestration order. Budgetary resources available for Federal pay, however, will be subject to sequestration as part of the reduction of administrative expenses. The amount of savings to be achieved in 1986 from reducing available funds for employee compensation cannot estimated because program managers are urged not to resort to personnel furloughs until other methods of achieving savings prove insufficient, such as reducing spending for travel, printing, supplies, and other services.

"This first-ever state holiday commemoration is not a demonstration," Fleming said, "but a celebration of what Dr. King stood for. It is not a Black Holiday, but a holiday for all citizens of Washington to think about equality for all mankind and to think about peace on earth."

Wineberry, who sponsored the King State Holiday Bill last session, said the celebration is to "inspire citizens of the state to live the dream, rather than simply dream about what King accomplished in his short lifetime."

The two legislators said plans for Jan. 20 include a motorcade to Olympia from all corners of the State. Cars, buses and a special "Freedom Train" will carry hundreds of citizens to Olympia

They urged all citizens to turn on their headlights as they travel throughout the state on the holiday.

Fleming, who began the effort in the state legislature 15 years ago to honor the life and times of Dr. King, said the celebration will culminate with a parade/march to the Washington State Capitol at 12noon.
